PLANS ON FOOT FOR HOSPITAL

Gettysburg People and City Physicians Working on Plans to Give this Town a Hospital. Need has Long been Felt.

Working quietly for the past few months several Gettysburg women and a number of people, principally physicians, from other places, now have on a fair way plans for the securing of funds for the erection and maintenance of a hospital in this place.

A prominent Philadelphia architect has volunteered his services in the drawing of plans for the hospital, and has already submitted one set of drawings. Many city physicians are interested and have volunteered financial assistance. It is believed that the donation of a site for the building can be secured.

Among those from a distance, interested are parties close to political powers and a state appropriation is also said to be a probable aid.

Though the work has been done quietly it has been going along steadily, and is in the hands of those having the best interests of Gettysburg and its people at heart. It is confidently believed by them that the hospital will be a reality within a reasonably short time. It will be started along modest lines at first and later extended as needs and funds increase.

The need of such an institution has long been felt here. Scarcely a week passes that some one from the town or county is not taken to a city hospital for treatment, all of whom could receive proper treatment in a local institution. In addition to these there are many others who, it is believed, would go to a hospital but would not leave town, for such a purpose. Local physicians have expressed themselves as not willing to operate in some cases on account of the danger of infection following operations in places which were not adapted for that kind of work and it is believed firmly by those interested in the project that many lives could be saved and many others prolonged if a hospital were established in Gettysburg.

AUTO CARS STOP

The operation of the Auto Car Company's automobile passenger line between Thurmont and Gettysburg has been discontinued. Dr. James K. Waters, of Thurmont, said that a meeting of the company's board of directors would be held shortly to determine upon its future course, but that it was probable that operation of the line would at least be suspended during the winter. The late Isaac S. Annan, of Emmitsburg, who died suddenly last week, was president of the company. John W. Feldman, of Hagerstown, is vice president. The company has found business pretty good during the summer, Dr. Waters said.

MODEL ORCHARDS IN THIS COUNTY

Pennsylvania State Department of Agriculture to Take Five Orchards in Adams County to Use as Models.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will establish in the near future five model orchards in Adams county. Many other counties in the state will be given the same consideration.

The object is to direct, in each fruit growing district, the care of an orchard in an up-to-date manner, to show the public how to obtain the best results, especially in pest control.

Fruit growing farmers who will co-operate in this movement, by permitting their orchards to be used for the purpose, should write at once to Prof. H. A. Surcouf, state zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., for information on the subject.

It is not proposed to take an old and totally neglected orchard and bring about a complete transformation, but to take under supervision one that is in fair condition, and assist the owner with expert advice and attention in regard to the management of the orchard and the suppression of pests.

It is believed that the value of the example of one successful man in a neighborhood is beyond computation. Should the methods in his orchard prove to be the best, as shown by indisputable returns of larger yields and better products, it invariably results in other persons adopting the methods which have proved most successful in that locality.

The owner of the orchard adopted by the division of zoology will be asked to provide himself with a comparatively inexpensive spraying outfit, which the division will help him to purchase at the lowest discount price. The division of zoology will outline a plan for his orchard management and furnish, without charge, all materials used for instruction and demonstration purposes, and also aid him in spraying, pruning, thinning of fruit, planting trees, cultivation, fertilization and such other practical work as may be necessary to secure the best results.

The public will be invited to visit the orchard at least three times in each year and witness demonstrations of spraying, pruning, planting, etc., and no orchard will be accepted without a distinct understanding in that respect.

It is the intention of the owners of nearly all the hotels, boarding houses and cottages to install electric lights, which will make a decided improvement in that section of the famous Blue Mountain resort.

Jacob Coonan, station agent of the Western Maryland Railroad company, Blue Ridge Summit, is having a handsome twelve room cottage built in the vicinity of "The Knoll." The house will be equipped with all the modern improvements, including heat, light and bath.

SHOT BUCK

Buchanan Valley, Nov. 18—Fleming C. Cole returning from the hills after a day's hunt for deer saw three lying down in the woods near the "Starnor Place," part of A. W. Cole's farm. There were two bucks and a doe. The one Mr. Cole shot had antlers with three prongs, and was a fine deer. The other buck was shot at by other members of the party, but failed to secure him. Flemming Cole rarely ever goes out for deer that he does not secure one, being a good marksman and understands how to hunt for deer.

NARROW ESCAPE

George Grove, mail carrier on Gettysburg route, 4 at noon on Tuesday drove his team up beside the large telephone pole in front of Hammers store in Highland township, unlocked the large iron mail box on the pole, received the mail, jumped into his cab and just as he passed the next pole both large poles dropped flat to the road without a moment's notice. Three seconds later in front of the store the horse would have been killed and Mr. Grove hurt. Miss Mae Myers just passed the pole and was on the store steps as the pole fell and Mr. W. H. Cover, the new proprietor at Keystone Mills, was just coming up towards the pole when it fell before him. In all three cases several seconds sooner or later would have caused serious trouble. Both poles were entirely decayed at the ground, yet withstood the heavy wind storms all fall and in the calm when not a leaf was moving both poles dropped at one and the same moment.

DR. R. B. WEAVER HONORED

The Philadelphia Academy of Medicine conferred its first honorary fellowship upon Dr. Rufus Weaver, professor of regional and applied anatomy in the Hahnemann Medical College. More than 150 of Dr. Weaver's former students and present associates and colleagues were present at the ceremony, which took place in Old Fellow Temple.

Dr. Weaver is a graduate of Pennsylvania Medical College in the class of 1865. He studied under Dr. D. Hayes Agnew, and since 1869 has been connected with Hahnemann. Among his achievements the greatest is considered to be the dissection of the entire cerebro-spinal nervous system, which is the only specimen of its kind in existence.

Dr. Rufus B. Weaver was born January 10, 1841, and reared in Gettysburg. He is the son of the late Samuel Weaver, of West Middle street. He has a brother, George, living on Baltimore street and his nephew, Rufus, is an assistant professor at college.

All the older residents here remember Dr. Weaver very well and are highly pleased at the honor conferred upon him.

NARROW ESCAPE

George Grove, mail carrier on Gettysburg route, 4 at noon on Tuesday drove his team up beside the large telephone pole in front of Hammers store, in Highland township, unlocked the large iron mail box on the pole, received the mail, jumped into his cab and just as he passed the next pole both large poles dropped flat to the road without a moment's notice. Three seconds later in front of the store the horse would have been killed and Mr. Grove hurt. Miss Mae Myers just passed the pole and was on the store steps as the pole fell and Mr. W. H. Cover, the new proprietor at Keystone Mills, was just coming up towards the pole when it fell before him. In all three cases several seconds sooner or later would have caused serious trouble. Both poles were entirely decayed at the ground, yet withstood the heavy wind storms all fall and in the calm when not a leaf was moving both poles dropped at one and the same moment.

PHILADELPHIA TRUST COMPANY FAILS

The American, With $395,000 in Deposits, Closed.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—The American Trust company, of Philadelphia, Broad street and Ridge avenue, closed its doors. This was done at the order of the state commissioner of banking, and a state bank examiner, A. L. Taber, was appointed temporary receiver. The trouble is said to have been due to "undigested" securities.

The banking commissioners' report sets forth that the company is "in an unsafe and unsound condition to do business," and is believed to be insolvent. A permanent receiver and a decree of dissolution will be asked for, and if there is any objection it is likely that disclosures will be made in court.

A substantial depositor of the suspended bank stated that "undigested" securities was no doubt meant loans which he understood the trust company had made to a concern manufacturing bricks at Passaic, N. J., also money said to have been advanced on coal lands in West Virginia.

The trust company's capital is $200,000, with a surplus of $47,000. Deposits amount to $395,000. Only $18,500 in cash was found in the vaults.

Suicide on Fall River Liner Made Sure of His Death.

New York, Nov. 18.—In the fog a man crept along the afterdeck of the Fall River line steamboat Providence, climbed up on the rail, and there posing for an instant, sent a bullet crashing into his head and dived overboard, still clutching the revolver.

That was the last seen or heard of the suicide. The report of the pistol was heard by several of the passengers and they looked just in time to see the shadow of the man as he fell off the rail and plunged into the waters of the sound. His identity is unknown. From papers found in the suicide's room it is believed that his name was Buckley, and that he hailed from Nova Scotia.

A.F.O.F. UPHOLDS THE BOYCOTT

John Mitchell Declares For Freedom of Action.

FIRM IN HIS ATTITUDE

Labor Leader Declares In Dramatic Speech Unions Have the Right to Boycott and Propose to Exercise That Right — Says Actions Are Watched at Washington.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—Indorsing a report of the committee on boycott, John Mitchell, one of the three officers of the American Federation of Labor under sentence for contempt of court, made a dramatic speech to the convention of that organization here.

He declared that as far as he was concerned, regardless of consequences, he intended, while at liberty, to declare for the rights guaranteed him by the organic laws of his country.

The report which drew forth Mitchell's speech, and which was adopted by the convention, declared:

"We say that when your cause is just and every other remedy has been employed without result, boycott; we say that when the employer has determined to exploit not only adult male labor, but our women and children, and our reasoning and appeal to his fairness and his conscience will not sway him, boycott; we say that when labor has been oppressed, browbeaten and tyrannized, boycott; we say that when social and political conditions become so bad that ordinary remedial measures are fruitless, boycott; and, finally, we say, we have a right to boycott and propose to exercise that right. In the application of this right of boycott, to paraphrase the president, Gompers, we propose to strive on and on."

The convention broke into loud cheering for Mitchell, and there were cries for "Morrison." The secretary did not respond. President Gompers was absent.

In his address Mr. Mitchell said:

"I understand that cognizance is being taken at Washington of the utterances of men on the floor of this convention, and I want clearly to state my position. I propose in the future, as I have in the past, to exercise the rights secured to me by the fathers of my country; and I propose, if I am sent to jail, to declare again, when I come out, that I shall not for myself purchase any product of the Bucks Slove and Range company."

"I make this declaration not to tickle the ear of any man, but that I may publicly declare that conviction that is within me."

He said that he had grown up as an American, with a stepmother so poor that she could not buy bread, and related how he had crept out of bed at night to get his father's soldier coat to keep him warm.

Mitchell said he believed the present proceedings would bring home to the people the necessity of working in concert. "Is the time going to come on our continent when the badge of faithfulness to labor must be the brand of imprisonment?" He said in conclusion: "Surely I hope not. I hope that the government may be so conducted that no citizen may feel that he has not been given justice and an equal right with every other citizen."

DID ALICE SMOKE CIGAR?

Congressman Longworth Denies Story, Calling Author Bad Name.

Cincinnati, Nov. 18.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth was seen regarding the story by a German woman Emma Kroeber, that Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt Longworth, arrayed in scarlet riding habit and smoking a big black cigar, led a cavalcade to the brink of the late empress of Korea's grave.

"The person who wrote that story was either drunk or crazy, or both," said Congressman Longworth. "I refer, of course, to the specific story printed when I sum up the mental, physical or other conditions of its author. I know nothing further of the book than this article, as I have never seen nor heard of the volume."

"I, of course, have never seen nor have I heard before of the woman who is the reputed author of the book. The most charitable interpretation in the case is that the author of this article in the newspapers was, as I said before drunk, crazy, or both. This is the only way in which I shall refer to that publication."

DIED IN MUD AND QUICKSAND

Man Who Could Not Resist Desire to Visit Mother Never Reached Her. Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 18.—An irresistible desire to pay a visit to the home of his mother in Margate City cost Frank Crowder, a dredging company employee, his life by drowning.

Ignoring the warning of friends that it would be madness to attempt to cross the slippery iron pipe carried upon pontoons from the big dredging steamer to the shore, a mile distant, Crowder started on his perilous journey, promising to be back for breakfast. He did not reach his home and did not put in an appearance in the morning. Companions found the man dead, a victim of mud and quicksand.

"PRISONER" OUT HUNTING

Trusty Couldn't Be Found When Called For Sentence.

Bridgeton, N. J., Nov. 18.—Judge Royal P. Tuller caused considerable confusion in the Cumberland county court when he called for a prisoner to be produced for sentence and the culprit couldn't be found. The man was an Italian, waiting for sentence on a trivial charge and from his good behavior had been made one of the "trusties" about the jail.

Gunning season being on, he had been allowed to participate in the sport and when a search was made about the jail his absence could only be accounted for in this way.

DISCOVERS WIFE IS OCTOON; KILLS SELF

Cousin of Prince Von Buelow Jumps Into River.

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—Edward Von Buelow, a first cousin of Prince Von Buelow, of Germany, committed suicide by jumping into the river because he was married to an octoon. He was arrested a week ago, charged with violating the concubinage law, which prohibits such relations between the races.

It seems that Von Buelow came to this country about twelve years ago, and in 1902 was married to a young woman, who claimed to be a widow with two children. She was almost white, and the marriage was performed in Jefferson parish. She bore him two children, and the family lived in a quiet residential district and seemed very happy.

Neighborhood gossip finally led to an investigation, and the disclosure that the woman was of color. Von Buelow was arrested and released on bond. He disappeared three days ago, writing to the district attorney that when his case was called he would be out of the jurisdiction of the court. His body was found in the river.

A contract was recently made by a Chicago coal company to furnish hard coal for a certain ward school of the city at $3.32 per ton. The fellow living west of the Mississippi naturally wonders if the $0 he has to pay over and above this price is absorbed by the railroads in transportation charges.

The United States produced 23,000,000 bushels of rice last year, which brought the growers about $18,000,000 at 80 cents a bushel. Inasmuch as the consumer has to buy this at the rate of three pounds for a quarter, it would seem as if the railroads or somebody else were getting a mighty generous rike off.

Honesty is the best policy not only as affecting one's standing in the church and community, but in the long run and short run it is proved every day to be the best policy in the business world. The fellow who makes short cuts to fill his wallet sooner or later comes to grief.

A farmers' bulletin recently issued by the department at Washington calls attention to the value of kale as a green food for hogs, cows and poultry. Green corn yields but sixteen tons per acre, while kale will produce forty tons.

FAMILY KILLED IN DUEL

Wife and Child of Contestant Run in Line of Fire.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 15.—An English family has been killed in a three-cornered duel at Pioneer. Clarence Compton, one of the principals, and his wife and little daughter were killed. Sylvester Owen was wounded. He and his brother, Clarence, are in custody.

An alleged slighting remark about the Owens' sister was the cause. The brothers demanded an apology. Compton retaliated by offering to fight both at the same time.

Armed with two automatic revolvers, he took his place against the Owens at a distance of twenty paces. The Owens brothers standing five feet apart. At the given word all three opened fire. As the Owens fired a fusillade Compton's wife and child dashed from their home and were shot down.

TRADING GIRLS FOR OPIUM

An Ounce of the Drug Buys a Young Woman Near Manila.

Manila, Nov. 15.—Natives of Sarangani, a group of islands to the south of Mindanao, are offering in barter young girls each for one ounce of opium, according to W. S. Lyon, a horticulturist, who returned from a trip through the south coast of Mindanao.

Mr. Lyon reports that there is considerable traffic in opium in South Mindanao, carried on by the Palm Island. The government cutters are lacking in number and facility to suppress the traffic.

The American, With $395,000 in Deposits, Closed.

Philadelphia, Nov. 15.—The American Trust company, of Philadelphia, Broad street and Ridge avenue, closed its doors. This was done at the order of the state commissioner of banking, and a state bank examiner, A. L. Taber, was appointed temporary receiver. The trouble is said to have been due to "undigested" securities.

The banking commissioners' report sets forth that the company is "in an unsafe and unsound condition to do business," and is believed to be insolvent. A permanent receiver and a decree of dissolution will be asked for, and if there is any objection it is likely that disclosures will be made in court.

A substantial depositor of the suspended bank stated that by "undigested" securities was no doubt meant loans which he understood the trust company had made to a concern manufacturing bricks at Passaic, N. J.; also money said to have been advanced on coal lands in West Virginia.

The trust company's capital is $200,000, with a surplus of $47,000. Deposits amount to $395,000. Only $18,500 in cash was found in the vaults.

SHOOTSELF, THEN DIVES

Suicide on Fall River Liner Made Sure of His Death.

New York, Nov. 15.—In the fog a man crept along the afterdeck of the Fall River line steamboat Providence, climbed up on the rail, and there posing for an instant, sent a bullet crashing into his head and dived overboard, still clutching the revolver.

That was the last seen or heard of the suicide. The report of the pistol was heard by several of the passengers and they looked just in time to see the shadow of the man as he fell off the rail and plunged into the waters of the sound. His identity is unknown. From papers found in the suicide's room it is believed that his name was Buckley, and that he hailed from Nova Scotia.

A. F. J. OPHEL UPHOLDS THE BOYCOTT

John Mitchell Declares For Freedom of Action.

FIRM IN HIS ATTITUDE

Labor Leader Declares in Dramatic Speech Unions Have the Right to Boycott and Proposes to Exercise That Right—Says Actions Are Watched at Washington.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Indorsing a report of the committee on boycott, John Mitchell, one of the three officers of the American Federation of Labor under sentence for contempt of court, made a dramatic speech to the convention of that organization here.

He declared that as far as he was concerned, regardless of consequences, he intended, while at liberty, to declare for the rights guaranteed him by the organic laws of his country.

The report which drew forth Mitchell's speech, and which was adopted by the convention, declared:

"We say that when your cause is just and every other remedy has been employed without result, boycott; we say that when the employer has determined to exploit not only adult male labor, but our women and children, and our reasoning and appeal to his fairness and his conscience will not sway him, boycott; we say that when labor has been oppressed, browbeaten and tyrannized, boycott; we say that when social and political conditions become so bad that ordinary remedial measures are fruitless, boycott; and, finally, we say, we have a right to boycott and propose to exercise that right in the application of this right of boycott, to paraphrase the president, Gompers, we propose to strive on and on."

The convention broke into loud cheering for Mitchell, and there were cries for "Morrison." The secretary did not respond. President Gompers was absent.

In his address Mr. Mitchell said:

"I understand that cognizance is being taken at Washington of the utterances of men on the floor of this convention, and I want clearly to state my position. I propose in the future, as I have in the past, to exercise the rights secured to me by the fathers of my country; and I propose, if I am sent to jail, to declare again, when I come out, that I shall not for myself purchase any product of the Bucks Store and Range company."

"I make this declaration not to tickle the ear of any man, but that I may publicly declare that conviction that is within me."

He said that he had grown up as an American, with a stepmother so poor that she could not buy bread, and related how he had crept out of bed at night to get his father's soldier coat to keep him warm.

Mitchell said he believed the present proceedings would bring home to the people the necessity of working in concert. "Is the time going to come on our continent when the badge of faithfulness to labor must be the brand of imprisonment?" He said in conclusion: "Surely I hope not. I hope that the government may be so conducted that no citizen may feel that he has not been given justice and an equal right with every other citizen."

DID ALICE SMOKE CIGAR?

Congressman Longworth Denies Story, Calling Author Bad Names.

Cincinnati, Nov. 15.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth was seen regarding the story by a German woman, Emma Kroebel, that Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt Longworth, arrayed in scarlet riding habit and smoking a big black cigar, led a cavalcade to the brink of the late empress of Korea's grave.

"The person who wrote that story was either drunk or crazy, or both," said Congressman Longworth. "I refer, of course, to the specific story printed when I sum up the mental, physical or other conditions of its author. I know nothing further of the book than this article, as I have never seen nor heard of the volume."

"I, of course, have never seen nor have I heard before of the woman who is the reputed author of the book. The most charitable interpretation in the case is that the author of this article in the newspapers was, as I said before, drunk, crazy, or both. This is the only way in which I shall refer to that publication."

NURSES STRICKEN WITH DIPHTHERIA

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Eight nurses at the Cook county hospital are stricken with diphtheria and are confined in the contagious wards of the institution. Aside from the nurses there is only one diphtheria patient at the county hospital.

DIED IN MUD AND QUICKSAND

Man Who Could Not Resist Desire to Visit Mother Never Reached Her.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 15.—An irresistible desire to pay a visit to the home of his mother in Margate City cost Frank Crowder, a dredging company employee, his life by drowning.

Ignoring the warning of friends that it would be madness to attempt to cross the slippery iron pipe carried upon pontoons from the big dredging steamer to the shore, a mile distant, Crowder started on his perilous journey, promising to be back for breakfast. He did not reach his home and did not put in an appearance in the morning. Companions found the man dead, a victim of mud and quicksand.

"PRISONER" OUT HUNTING

Trusty Couldn't Be Found When Called For Sentence.

Bridgeport, N. J., Nov. 15.—Judge Royal P. Tuller caused considerable confusion in the Cumberland county court when he called for a prisoner to be produced for sentence and the culprit couldn't be found. The man was an Italian, waiting for sentence on a trivial charge and from his good behavior had been made one of the "trusties" about the jail.

Gunning season being on, he had been allowed to participate in the sport and when a search was made about the jail his absence could only be accounted for in this way.

DISCOVERS WIFE IS OCTOON; KILLS SELF

Cousin of Prince Von Buelow Jumps Into River.

New Orleans, Nov. 15.—Edward Von Buelow, a first cousin of Prince Von Buelow, of Germany, committed suicide by jumping into the river because he was married to an octoon. He was arrested a week ago, charged with violating the concubinage law, which prohibits such relations between the races.

It seems that Von Buelow came to this country about twelve years ago, and in 1902 was married to a young woman, who claimed to be a widow with two children. She was almost white, and the marriage was performed in Jefferson parish. She bore him two children, and the family lived in a quiet residential district and seemed very happy.

Neighborhood gossip finally led to an investigation, and the disclosure that the woman was of color. Von Buelow was arrested and released on bond. He disappeared three days ago, writing to the district attorney that when his case was called he would be out of the jurisdiction of the court. His body was found in the river.

I., was sentenced to not less than seven nor more than ten years in state prison. After the girl's death in his office Hill dismembered her body and distributed it in the woods near Tiverton, R. I.

The Brotherhood of Good Road Druggers has recently been organized in Missouri. The membership is not restricted, and the password is "Good roads." Business and professional men, farmers and bankers have joined. City and country roads are to be dragged under a co-operative plan.

A contract was recently made by a Chicago coal company to furnish hard coal for a certain ward school of the city at $3.12 per ton. The fellow living west of the Mississippi naturally wonders if the $3 he has to pay over and above this price is absorbed by the railroads in transportation charges.

The United States produced 23,000,000 bushels of rice last year, which brought the growers about $18,000,000 at 80 cents a bushel. Inasmuch as the consumer has to buy this at the rate of three pounds for a quarter, it would seem as if the railroads or somebody else were getting a mighty generous rake off.

Honesty is the best policy not only as affecting one's standing in the church and community, but in the long run and short run it is proved every day to be the best policy in the business world. The fellow who makes short cuts to fill his wallet sooner or later comes to grief.

That Minneapolis judge had a becoming regard for the public health who lately denied the appeal of milk dealers of that place for an injunction to restrain the local board of health from seizing milk from untested cows. The milkmen made the defense that the milk was pasteurized, but this was not accepted by the court as pertinent.

A farmers' bulletin recently issued by the department at Washington calls attention to the value of kale as a green food for hogs, cows and poultry. As a silage material it is also favored, costing but from 17 to 25 cents per ton, while corn costs from 75 cents to $1.50 per ton. Green corn yields but sixteen tons per acre, while kale will produce forty tons.

The People's Drug Store of this town says that he has found indisputable proof that eczema can be cured—not in one or two cases, but in scores of cases which he has studied.

He would, of course, not think of making such a recommendation to his neighbors and patrons, were it not that his years and years of success with D. D. D. Prescription enables him to speak of this remedy with confidence. It is a gentle, soothing wash with the mild oil of wintergreen as a base. All the cures seem to be permanent, at any rate, a trial bottle at 25 cents will take away the itch at once—instantly. We are sure of this. People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Penna.

CARRIED BY STORM.

By F. A. MITCHELL.

(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

The Von Puttkamers were one of the most respectable families in Germany. Their customs, their manners, their daily occupations, were the same as they had been several hundred years before, when the first Puttkamer was permitted to prefix Von to his name. They lived on the family estate at Relafeld, arose in the morning at a certain hour, attended to their duties, household and social, during the day and went to bed and to sleep at the same hour every night. Nothing had ever occurred to disturb the serenity of their lives, and it did not occur to any one of them, especially to Herr von Puttkamer and his good wife, that any disconcerting episode would ever occur to them.

But where young women are growing up destined to become wives there is always a skeleton in the family closet. The mother may realize that a pretty daughter will marry and leave the family nest, but the father, if such a thought comes into his head, either banishes it or considers it likely only to happen in the far future. The time came, as it must inevitably come, when the whole Puttkamer family was startled as if by the shock of an earthquake.

An application arrived from a young officer in the Russian army for permission to pay his addresses to Johanna Puttkamer. This was equivalent to asking for her hand. At first only the horrible proposition to take away one of the lambs was considered. Then note was taken of the wolf who had broken into the fold. Who was he? A Von, an officer, a member of an excellent family. But with this list of recommendations ended. At the university where he had studied his wild ways had fastened upon him the sobriquet of "Mad." A big man, with long legs, he strode through German customs, trampling them at every step. He never did anything as any one else would do it. He had no reverence, no fear. He smoked big black cigars and drank cases of beer. Terrible as it was to give up the maiden it was ex-cruciating to risk her happiness with such a man.

A family council was called—that is, a conference among the older members. The applicant's position, talents, habits, were discussed and testimony regarding them taken. On the one hand was the young officer's family and social status; on the other his mad pranks, his contempt for established forms. It was not deemed wise to positively decline what might prove a good match nor to accept what might prove a very bad one. Better temporize until an acquaintance with the soldier could be gained. The final decision was to invite him to the family domain and look him over. If he were kind in love, he would wait; if not, well, perhaps they would be well rid of him. So Herr von Puttkamer wrote the young man permission to pay the family a visit of inspection, just as a church congregation permits a candidate to preach them a sample sermon.

Word having reached the Puttkamer home of the hour at which the soldier would arrive, preparation was made to receive him according to the sacred traditions of the first families of Germany—uncles and aunts were invited to be present during the visit that the benefit of their observations might be obtained. He was to be permitted to remain all some estimate of his promise as a husband had been secured, then to be sent away for further education, perhaps other visits and a final decision, which would be communicated to him in due time.

Meanwhile the girl waited for dutifully waited for the result of all this investigation.

When the day came round and the hour approached for the soldier's arrival at the Puttkamer family and the oldest and most trusted relations were lined up to receive him to protect the lamb from any sudden dash of the wolf Johanna was stationed in the center of the group between her father and mother, while the others extended as wings on either side. A clatter of horse's hoofs was heard coming up the driveway at a gallop, and a moment later a tall, dark young man threw himself to the ground. There stood the father and mother glaring solemnly, between them the blushing Johanna, with her eyes cast on the ground. Without a moment's hesitation the lover in forward, flung his arms around her and held her tightly to his breast and covered her face with kisses. Meanwhile the scandalized parents stood flinching lightning from their eyes at this annihilation of all their plans, all their precaution.

But the victory was with the young man, who had carried the position by storm. It was not long before the father and mother realized that the matter was settled. What? Prevent their daughter to remain unbetrothed to the man who had embraced her? Never! The inspection was ended at its beginning; the prohibition did not take place. It was a settled fact that little Johanna was to be given over to her lover though he were a monster. Before he left Relafeld the pair went through the forms of betrothal.

Years after this triumph, with the same whirlwind decision, the man who made it achieved others in a far different field—that of statesmanship and diplomacy. For years he directed the policy of the King of Prussia, he humbled that king's enemy, France, and from the palace of Versailles proclaimed his chief emperor of Germany. His name will be handed down among the greatest of European statesmen. It was Otto von Bismarck.

HOW SUGAR TRUST BRIBED SAMPLERS

"Mum's the Word; Take Your Bit and Shut Up."

CORSA TELLS HIS STORY

Former Assistant Sampler Says Government Employees Received From $12 to $15 Each Per Cargo—Lost His Position For Reporting Bribery to His Superiors.

New York, Nov. 18.—"Poor Corsa" was the phrase that Wilbur F. Wake man, the former appraiser, used in speaking of Henry C. Corsa, the assistant sampler on the Jersey docks, who took to Mr. Wakenman the money given him by the sugar trust's briber. "This was the money that Mr. Wakenman took to Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, who referred him to Henry O. Havemeyer with the evidence. What happened there has been told already. Corsa's official head was chopped off not long after this, at the time that Mr. Wakenman was succeeded by George H. Whitehead, an appointee of ex-President Roosevelt. Here is Corsa's story:

"I went into the custom house with an attitude of mind toward the government that was very dear to me. Once before I had taken an oath. It was at the outbreak of the Civil War. Always the things I had seen about the government led me to respect it and to hold my relationship to it very sacred."

The work to which I was assigned was that of an assistant sampler. When a boat came in a sampler was stationed at every hatchway to dip samples out of the sugar as it was landed. At busy times the assistants were put at this work. Ordinarily the assistants were to carry the trays of samples to the locked sheds, in which they were to await collection by the appraiser's wagon.

"Mum's the Word." "It was then that I saw the assistants taking their trays through the trust agent's collar," said Mr. Corsa. "I was told: 'You're in on this, old man. Mum's the word—there's money enough to go round in it—don't be a squealer, and take your bit and shut up!'"

The trust's briber, said Mr. Corsa, would take the pots of samples, dump them out and refill them from a hogshead of damp, spoiled sugar, kept there for the purpose. Corsa didn't understand what was going on at first, but he wasn't left long in the dark.

One day when he was coming out of the warehouse another employee said to him, "You've got your money, old man; it's in your coat pocket. I got mine, too. So!" The other man drew out a roll of bills, and Corsa put his hand in his pocket and found a similar roll. Corsa understood then. He was beginning to realize what the briber was there for and also what another man at the Williamsburg docks was doing.

A short time after this the system of sampling was abolished and a plan of stabling was installed. After a sack of sugar had been stabbed the sampler would drop the sample into a locked bucket, for which the only keys were in the possession of the appraiser. By that time Corsa was being used pretty regularly as a sampler. Occasionally the trust men happened to be near him.

Briber Close at Hand.

"Now, don't give us the worst of it. Knock her down a point or two and we'll see you fixed all right," he would say to Corsa. Here again the meaning wasn't entirely clear to Corsa. Then he woke up to the fact that there was a difference in the quality of sugar contained in a single sack. He learned that the coarser grained and the drier it was the higher would be the test. Also, that near the bottom of the sack there might be bilge water, and that if the sack was stabbed there the test would be low. Sticky sugar might be packed on top, he learned, too, and there a stabling brought the same result. The government regulation provided for a diagonal stabling. It was to avoid this what the trust was paying for. In hogshead sugar the molasses would drain to the bottom, and to get a low grade sample at this point was much easier than on a sack.

The bits that the samplers received for cautious stabling, with the trust's interests in mind, were from $12 to $25, Corsa discovered.

"The service we were asked to render would save the sugar trust about $2000 on each cargo," said Mr. Corsa. "It was polluting us for about $200 on each cargo, counting what went to the head sampler, as well as the samplers and their assistants."

Corsa saw that this was going on all over the docks. He didn't blame the other men, because they were as poor as he was. But it didn't seem quite right to him.

Mr. Corsa took his information to Appraiser Wakenman, who referred it to Secretary Gage. Shortly after this Mr. Wakenman was relieved and George W. Whitehead was appointed appraiser. The next day Corsa was discharged.

Iowa Court Holds Private Concern Has Right to Discriminate.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 18.—The Iowa supreme court handed down a decision holding that a private business concern, under the Iowa statute, can legally refuse to serve a colored person.

Mrs. Susie Brown, colored, sued the J. H. Dell Coffee company for $1000 damages, because a cup of coffee was refused to her at a pure food show in Des Moines a year ago.

In the lower court she won, but the supreme court reversed the decision, holding that the Dell company, being a private concern, had the right to refuse to serve any one it wished, even though the person had paid an admission fee at the door.

PRELATE DROPS DEAD

Monsignor McAndrew III Since Celebration in His Honor.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 18.—Mgr. R. A. McAndrew, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church here, who was last month elevated to the position of a domestic prelate by the pope, dropped dead. The excitement and nervous strain due to the celebration when he recently assumed the new position, which was made an auspicious event here caused a nervous breakdown and this developed heart trouble. He dropped dead while about his home. He was fifty-seven years old and had been in the priesthood for thirty-two years.

CAN BRING ELECTRIC VICTIMS BACK TO LIFE

Confident She Can Resuscitate Those Electrocutted.

New York, Nov. 18.—Absolutely confident that she can resuscitate a man who has been electrocuted, Dr. Louise G. Rabinovitch, well known in surgery research work in European capitals, only waits an invitation to prove the truth of her many experiments.

Dr. Rabinovitch, who is a graduate of Paris, Berlin and other universities, and the inventor of four electric machines for various humanitarian purposes, has experimented on dogs, rabbits and other animals whose systems are closely allied to that of man, and in every case where apparent death had been caused by electrocution or anesthetic poisoning she has succeeded in restoring the animal to the full vigor of life.

According to Dr. Rabinovitch, a man is rarely killed in the electric chair. She believes the method of execution in the prisons of this country is entirely wrong.

In her experiments she actually kills the subject, then places the electrodes in position and, with a very light current, charges the body, at the same time opening and closing the circuit with the regularity of nature.

The pulsations of the heart are distinctly seen and felt through the arteries, while the respirations are so strong as to be heard at a distance. Within a minute or two the heart action and respiration become natural, when the current is immediately shut off and life re-begins where it ended.

Resuscitations of persons who have died by laudanum, ether, chloroform, carbolic acid and many other poisons is possible in nearly every case, she says, unless organic injury has been done. The person who dies from morphine or other narcotic poison is undoubtedly dead, she admits, yet resuscitation by her method is almost certain.

GETS BRIDGE CONTRACT

Steel Trust Now Prepared to Manufacture Structural Steel.

Pittsburg, Nov. 18.—A contract involving about $1,750,000 was secured by the American Bridge company for the making and erection of the fabric of the new municipal bridge across the Mississippi river at St. Louis. That which is manifestly of greater importance to the iron and steel world, that the Carnegie Steel company is now prepared to manufacture nickel steel for structural work in opposition to Charles M. Schwab on the largest scale, was also brought out by the closing of the contract.

Opposed to Public Viewing the Dead.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 18.—Members of the Ministerial Association of the Evangelical Church of Berwick and vicinity vigorously opposed the practice of exposing a corpse to the public view, and there were several expressions denouncing the practice. The members then took a vote agreeing that it was the sense of the meeting that the practice had an unwelcome effect and should always be vigorously discouraged.

TO SET 1911 FOR CONTEST

British Sportman Says Under Present Rules He Would Not Have a Chance to Win, and That Would Not Be Sport.

New York, Nov. 18.—Sir Thomas Lipton will challenge for a race for the America's cup, to be sailed in 1911. Sir Thomas made this statement just before sailing for Europe on the steamer Lusitania.

Sir Thomas has been here for several weeks to learn the attitude of the members of the New York Yacht club on the question of modification of the rules governing the America's cup. What assurances, if any, he received is not known. Before sailing, Sir Thomas said:

"I will challenge for a race in 1911. I am sure the New York Yacht club will give the question full consideration. I believe they are just as anxious as anybody else for a race. I would have challenged for a race next summer had it been possible to get a boat ready in time."

"If the New York Yacht club insist on a challenge under the present rules governing international cup races I would stand no chance to win, and that would not be sport. I shall issue my challenge with the largest type of boat to conform as far as possible with their ideas."

Members of the New York Yacht club said that until Sir Thomas's challenge had been formally laid before them no definite statement could be made regarding its acceptance. Leading members of the club held the opinion that the old racing rules should govern contests for the America's cup.

Mule Left by Departing Woman Ends Husband's Troubles.

Pittsburg, Nov. 18.—Mrs. James Edmonds, of Washington county, is alleged to have deserted her home recently, taking with her the household effects, five head of cattle, but leaving behind an old mule. Edmonds preferred charges of desertion against his wife and larceny against a Pittsburg man.

Wednesday the mule, Edmonds' only possession, kicked him, causing his death a short time later in a hospital.

They were wedded two years ago and lived together for only three months, when the husband deserted his aged wife and has not since returned to her.

CARRIED BY STORM.

By F. A. MITCHEL.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The Von Puttkamers were one of the most respectable families in Germany. Their customs, their manners, their daily occupations, were the same as they had been several hundred years before, when the first Puttkamer was permitted to prefix Von to his name. They lived on the family estate at Reinhold, arose in the morning at a certain hour, attended to their duties, household and social, during the day and went to bed and to sleep at the same hour every night. Nothing had ever occurred to disturb the serenity of their lives, and it did not occur to any one of them, especially to Herr von Puttkamer and his good wife, that any disconcerting episode would ever occur to them.

But where young women are growing up destined to become wives there is always a skeleton in the family closet. The mother may realize that a pretty daughter will mate and leave the family nest, but the father, if such a thought comes into his head, either banishes it or considers it likely only to happen in the far future. The time came, as it must inevitably come, when the whole Puttkamer family was startled as if by the shock of an earthquake.

An application arrived from a young officer in the Prussian army for permission to pay his addresses to Johanna Puttkamer. This was equivalent to asking for her hand. At first only the horrible proposition to take away one of the lambs was considered. Then note was taken of the wolf who had broken into the fold. Who was he? A Von, an officer, a member of an excellent family. But with this list of recommendations ended. At the university where he had studied his wild ways had fastened upon him the sobriquet of "Mad." A big man, with long legs, he strode through German customs, trampling them at every step. He never did anything as any one else would do it. He had no reverence, no fear. He smoked big black cigars and drank casks of beer. Terrible as it was to give up the maiden, it was exonerating to risk her happiness with such a man.

A family conclave was called—that is, a conclave among the older members. The applicant's position, talents, habits, were discussed and testimony regarding them taken. On the one hand was the young officer's family and social status, on the other his mad pranks, his contempt for established forms. It was not deemed wise to positively decline what might prove a good match nor to accept what might prove a very bad one. Better temporize until an acquaintance with the suitor could be gained. The final decision was to invite him to the family domain and look him over. If he were much in love, he would wait; if not, well, perhaps they would be well rid of him. So Herr von Puttkamer wrote the young man permission to pay the family a visit of inspection, just as a church congregation permits a candidate to preach them a sample sermon.

Word having reached the Puttkamer home of the hour at which the suitor would arrive, preparation was made to receive him according to the sacred traditions of the first families of Germany—uncles and aunts were invited to be present during the visit that the benefit of their observations might be obtained. He was to be permitted to remain till some estimate of his promise as a husband had been secured, then to be sent away for further deliberation, perhaps other visits and a final decision, which would be communicated to him in due form.

Meanwhile the girl applied for demurely waited for the result of all this investigation.

When the day came round and the hour approached for the suitor's arrival the Puttkamer family and the oldest and most trusted relations were lined up to receive him to protect the lamb from any sudden dash of the wolf Johanna was stationed in the center of the group between her father and mother, while the others extended as wings on either side. A clatter of horse's hoofs was heard coming up the driveway at a gallop, and a moment later a tall, lank young man threw himself to the ground. There stood the father and mother glaring solemnly, between them the blushing Johanna, with her eyes cast on the ground. Without a moment's hesitation the lover ran forward, flung his arms around her, drew her tightly to his breast and covered her face with kisses. Meanwhile the scandalized parents stood flashing lightning from their eyes at this annihilation of all their plans, all their precaution.

But the victory was with the young man, who had carried the position by storm. It was not long before the father and mother realized that the matter was settled. What! Prevent their daughter to remain unbetrothed to the man who had embraced her! Never! The inspection was ended at its beginning; the probation did not take place. It was a settled fact that little Johanna was to be given over to her lover though he were a monster. Before he left Reinhold the pair went through the forms of betrothal.

Years after this triumph, with the same whirlwind decision, the man who made it achieved others in a far different field—that of statesmanship and diplomacy. For years he directed the policy of the king of Prussia, he humbled that king's enemy, France, and from the palace of Versailles proclaimed his chief emperor of Germany. His name will be handed down among the greatest of European statesmen. It was Otto von Bismarck.

CORSA TELLS HIS STORY

Former Assistant Sampler Says Government Employees Received From $12 to $15 Each Per Cargo—Lost His Position For Reporting Bribery to His Superiors.

New York, Nov. 18.—"Poor Corsa" was the phrase that Wilbur F. Wakeman, the former appraiser, used in speaking of Henry C. Corsa, the assistant sampler on the Jersey docks, who took to Mr. Wakeman the money given him by the sugar trust's briber. This was the money that Mr. Wakeman took to Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, who referred him to Henry O. Havemeyer with the evidence. What happened there has been told already. Corsa's official head was chopped off not long after this, at the time that Mr. Wakeman was succeeded by George H. Whitehead, an appointee of ex-President Roosevelt. Here is Corsa's story:

"I went into the custom house with an attitude of mind toward the government that was very dear to me. Once before I had taken an oath. It was at the outbreak of the Civil War. Always the things I had seen about the government led me to respect it and to hold my relationship to it very sacred.

The work to which I was assigned was that of an assistant sampler. When a boat came in a sampler was stationed at every hatchway to dip samples out of the sugar as it was landed. At busy times the assistants were put at this work. Ordinarily the assistants were to carry the trays of samples to the locked sheds, in which they were to await collection by the appraiser's wagon.

"Mum's the Word." "It was then that I saw the assistants taking their trays through the trust agent's cellar," said Mr. Corsa. "I was told: 'You're in on this, old man. Mum's the word—there's money enough to go round in it—don't be a squealer, and take your bit and shut up!'"

The trust's briber, said Mr. Corsa, would take the pots of samples, dump them out and refill them from a hogshead of damp, spoiled sugar, kept there for the purpose. Corsa didn't understand what was going on at first, but he wasn't left long in the dark.

One day when he was coming out of the warehouse another employee said to him: "You've got your money, old man; it's in your coat pocket. I got mine, too. See!" The other man drew out a roll of bills, and Corsa put his hand in his pocket and found a similar roll. Corsa understood then. He was beginning to realize what the briber was there for and also what another man at the Williamsburg docks was doing.

A short time after this the system of sampling was abolished and a plan of stabling was installed. After a sack of sugar had been stabbed the sampler would drop the sample into a locked bucket, for which the only keys were in the possession of the appraiser. By that time Corsa was being sent pretty regularly as a sampler. Occasionally the trust man happened to be near him.

Briber Close at Hand.

"Now, don't give us the worst of it. Knock her down a point or two and we'll see you fixed all right," he would say to Corsa. Here again the meaning wasn't entirely clear to Corsa. Then he woke up to the fact that there was a difference in the quality of sugar contained in a single sack. He learned that the coarser grained and the drier it was the higher would be the test. Also, that near the bottom of the sack there might be bilge water, and that if the sack was stabbed there the test would be low. Sticky sugar might be packed on top, he learned, too, and there a stabbing brought the same result. The government regulation provided for a diagonal stabbing. It was to avoid this what the trust was paying for. In hogshead sugar the molasses would drain to the bottom, and to get a low grade sample at this point was much easier than on a sack.

The bits that the samplers received for cautious stabbing, with the trust's interests in mind, were from $12 to $25, Corsa discovered.

"The service we were asked to render would save the sugar trust about $2000 on each cargo," said Mr. Corsa. "It was polluting us for about $200 on each cargo, counting what went to the head sampler, as well as the samplers and their assistants."

Corsa saw that this was going on all over the docks. He didn't blame the other men, because they were as poor as he was. But it didn't seem quite right to him.

Mr. Corsa took his information to Appraiser Wakeman, who referred it to Secretary Gage. Shortly after this Mr. Wakeman was relieved and George W. Whitehead was appointed appraiser. The next day Corsa was discharged.

Iowa Court Holds Private Concern Has Right to Discriminate.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 18.—The Iowa supreme court handed down a decision holding that a private business concern, under the Iowa statute, can legally refuse to serve a colored person.

Mrs. Susie Brown, colored, sued the J. H. Bell Coffee company for $1000 damages, because a cup of coffee was refused to her at a pure food show in Des Moines a year ago.

In the lower court she won, but the supreme court reversed the decision, holding that the Bell company, being a private concern, had the right to refuse to serve any one it wished, even though the person had paid an admission fee at the door.

PRELATE DROPS DEAD

Monsignor McAndrew Ill Since Celebration in His Honor.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 18.—Mgr. R. A. McAndrew, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church here, who was last month elevated to the position of a domestic prelate by the pope, dropped dead. The excitement and nervous strain due to the celebration when he recently assumed the new position, which was made an auspicious event here, caused a nervous breakdown and this developed heart trouble. He dropped dead while about his home. He was fifty-seven years old and had been in the priesthood for thirty-two years.

CAN BRING ELECTRIC VICTIMS BACK TO LIFE

Confident She Can Resuscitate Those Electrocuted.

New York, Nov. 18.—Absolutely confident that she can resuscitate a man who has been electrocuted, Dr. Louise G. Rabinovitch, well known in surgery research work in European capitals, only waits an invitation to prove the truth of her many experiments.

Dr. Rabinovitch, who is a graduate of Paris, Berlin and other universities, and the inventor of four electric machines for various humanitarian purposes, has experimented on dogs, rabbits and other animals whose systems are closely allied to that of man, and in every case where apparent death had been caused by electrocution or anaesthetic poisoning she has succeeded in restoring the animal to the full vigor of life.

According to Dr. Rabinovitch, a man is rarely killed in the electric chair. She believes the method of execution in the prisons of this country is entirely wrong.

In her experiments she actually kills the subject, then places the electrodes in position and, with a very light current, charges the body, at the same time opening and closing the circuit with the regularity of nature.

The pulsations of the heart are distinctly seen and felt through the arteries, while the respirations are so strong as to be heard at a distance. Within a minute or two the heart action and respiration become natural, when the current is immediately shut off and life re-begins where it ended.

Resuscitations of persons who have died by laudanum, ether, chloroform, carbolic acid and many other poisons is possible in nearly every case, she says, unless organic injury has been done. The person who dies from morphine or other narcotic poison is undoubtedly dead, she admits, yet resuscitation by her method is almost certain.

GETS BRIDGE CONTRACT

Steel Trust Now Prepared to Manufacture Structural Steel.

Pittsburg, Nov. 18.—A contract involving about $1,750,000 was secured by the American Bridge company for the making and erection of the fabric of the new municipal bridge across the Mississippi river at St. Louis. That which is manifestly of greater importance to the iron and steel world, that the Carnegie Steel company is now prepared to manufacture nickel steel for structural work in opposition to Charles M. Schwab on the largest scale, was also brought out by the closing of the contract.

Opposed to Public Viewing the Dead.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 18.—Members of the Ministerial Association of the Evangelical Church of Berwick and vicinity vigorously opposed the practice of exposing a corpse to the public view, and there were several expressions denouncing the practice. The members then took a vote agreeing that it was the sense of the meeting that the practice had an unwholesome effect and should always be vigorously discouraged.

Sir Thomas Says He Will Issue a Challenge.

TO SET 1911 FOR CONTEST

British Sportman Says Under Present Rules He Would Not Have a Chance to Win, and That Would Not Be Sport.

New York, Nov. 18.—Sir Thomas Lipton will challenge for a race for the America's cup, to be sailed in 1911. Sir Thomas made this statement just before sailing for Europe on the steamer Lusitania.

members of the New York Yacht club on the question of modification of the rules governing the America's cup. What assurances, if any, he received is not known. Before sailing, Sir Thomas said:

"I will challenge for a race in 1911. I am sure the New York Yacht club will give the question full consideration. I believe they are just as anxious as anybody else for a race. I would have challenged for a race next summer had it been possible to get a boat ready in time.

"If the New York Yachtmen insist on a challenge under the present rules governing international cup races, I would stand no chance to win, and that would not be sport. I shall issue my challenge with the largest type of boat to conform as far as possible with their ideas."

Members of the New York Yacht club said that until Sir Thomas's challenge had been formally laid before them no definite statement could be made regarding its acceptance. Leading members of the club held the opinion that the old racing rules should govern contests for the America's cup.

They were wedded two years ago and lived together for only three months, when the husband deserted his aged wife and has not since returned to her.

EDUCATION FOR THE BOYS.

Why Sons of Small Farmers Develop Managerial Ability.

The education acquired on the small farm broadens citizenship because it is a many sided education and gives correct impressions of many phases of life. All over the world the small, independent farmers are staunch supporters of conservative government. They are intense lovers of home and opposed to radical changes.

Ultimately the small farmer learns to keep a reserve of cash against emergencies, and these aggregated accumulations become very important factors in the capital of the nation, for they are more reliable than deposits from commercial sources. The vast sums of money necessary to carry on the business of a nation are not derived from the deposits of capitalists, but from the aggregation of millions of thrifty small depositors. This is especially true in England, France, Germany and the United States.

It has been observed for years that the sons of small farmers develop managing ability. From their earliest years they are compelled to do things and to act independently. It is from this source that the greatest number of managers of the various enterprises of our country have been drawn.

The great value of educating and training youth for agriculture is so universally conceded that it does not require discussion. The necessity of presenting and impressing better types of husbandry upon adult farmers through demonstrations under their care is rapidly being accepted by the American people as a most important means of education for the rural masses and necessary to any general and rapid advancement.

If all is considered education that "leads out," develops or trains the individual, then the amount of education acquired in even the best schools is only a fraction of what the average man must know to succeed in life. It is, then, of the highest importance to the state that this greater mass of knowledge should be correct, broad, conservative and elevating. Liberal provision has been made for schools by the state, by churches and by individual gifts, but the molding of this greater knowledge to the best interests of society has been mainly left to the caprice of individual effort. The state can with propriety specially foster such conditions of society, such lines of industry or such occupations as evidently tend to mental and physical vigor, to breadth of understanding, to the best citizenship and to the stability of the state. For these ends no more potent influence has been found than an intelligent, prosperous and contented body of thrifty small farmers.

Picking and Packing Apples.

The harvest of the apple is here and will continue for some weeks. Here are some suggestions that may assist the growers:

Pick into baskets. They should be about half bushel and round, with drop handles. The baskets should be smooth on the inside—that is, free from strips around the inside or bottom, lined with burlap to prevent bruising, and a short iron hook should be attached to the handle to suspend the basket from the limbs, so as to enable the picker to use both hands.

The great advantage in using the basket lies largely in the fact that if the apples are carefully placed in the same they are not bruised.

Apples packed from the barrel and immediately placed in cold storage (if they are to be put into cold storage) will give by far the better results. This method adds two to four months to the keeping qualities of the fruit. You cannot afford to let your fruit lie under the trees or in a building for two or three weeks before you barrel it. Fruit grown in a warm latitude or harvested during a warm September or October must be quickly handled. But when properly handled at picking time there will not be much room for complaint. A good barrel is essential if you wish to store your fruit, have it keep well and sell. A tight barrel is the best, and the better it is made the better results you will have. There will be less loss from shrinkage of fruit, from rats and mice and other causes.

In hauling barreled apples to the car and in shipping lay the barrels on the side. Never stand them on end if you wish the fruit to remain tight in the barrels.

Keep Celery Growing.

Celery should be kept growing rapidly and without interruption. A check in growth will often make the plant go to seed instead of producing edible stalks.

Among the many excellent provisions of the lately enacted North Dakota pure food law is one requiring merchants to screen fruits which are to be eaten whole from flies and street dust. The retailers have taken advantage of the law for their own advantage, as they have adopted the plan of displaying such fruit in a neat and inviting "cage" under glass showcases. Reports are to the effect that their fruit sales have largely increased under the new system. The law has proved out as a sort of blessing in disguise, which it surely is for the consumer.

If You Have It, Read This Letter.

People's Drug Store Guarantees Mi-o-na
"I was taken last August with a severe stomach trouble. The doctor said it was nervous dyspepsia. He gave me medicine for that. I took his treatment four weeks, didn't feel any better at the end of four weeks than I did when I commenced taking his medicine. I took everything I heard of. The first day of December, 1938, I got a box of Mi-o-na. I took them that afternoon and next day and haven't had one bit of pain in my stomach since the 2nd of December. I took five boxes. Feel well now, sleep good—that is something I haven't done in a number of years." Mrs. M. E. Maxwell, R. F. D. 2, Avoca, N. Y., June 9, 1939.

Mi-o-na in the form of a tablet is the best prescription for indigestion ever written.

It relieves after dinner distress, belching of gas, foul breath, heartburn, etc., in five minutes.

It is guaranteed by People's Drug Store to permanently cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or any disease of the stomach or money back.

Mi-o-na is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Gettysburg by People's Drug Store at 50 cents a large box. Test sample free from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

EDUCATION FOR THE BOYS.

Why Sons of Small Farmers Develop Managerial Ability.

The education acquired on the small farm broadens citizenship because it is a many sided education and gives correct impressions of many phases of life. All over the world the small, independent farmers are staunch supporters of conservative government. They are intense lovers of home and opposed to radical changes.

Ultimately the small farmer learns to keep a reserve of cash against emergencies, and these aggregated accumulations become very important factors in the capital of the nation, for they are more reliable than deposits from commercial sources. The vast sums of money necessary to carry on the business of a nation are not derived from the deposits of capitalists, but from the aggregation of millions of thrifty small depositors. This is especially true in England, France, Germany and the United States.

It has been observed for years that the sons of small farmers develop managing ability. From their earliest years they are compelled to do things and to act independently. It is from this source that the greatest number of managers of the various enterprises of our country have been drawn.

The great value of educating and training youth for agriculture is so universally conceded that it does not require discussion. The necessity of presenting and impressing better types of husbandry upon adult farmers through demonstrations under their care is rapidly being accepted by the American people as a most important means of education for the rural masses and necessary to any general and rapid advancement.

If all is considered education that "leads out," develops or trains the individual, then the amount of education acquired in even the best schools is only a fraction of what the average man must know to succeed in life. It is, then, of the highest importance to the state that this greater mass of knowledge should be correct, broad, conservative and elevating. Liberal provision has been made for schools by the state, by churches and by individual gifts, but the molding of this greater knowledge to the best interests of society has been mainly left to the caprice of individual effort. The state can with propriety specially foster such conditions of society, such lines of industry or such occupations as evidently tend to mental and physical vigor, to breadth of understanding, to the best citizenship and to the stability of the state. For these ends no more potent influence has been found than an intelligent, prosperous and contented body of thrifty small farmers.
